

The British Association of Gynaecological Pathologists

The British Association of Gynaecological Pathologists has scheduled a series of virtual 1-2 hour gynaecological pathology teaching sessions delivered by a host of speakers via Zoom. These sessions will be free of cost for the delegates.

The BAGP is cognisant of the difficulties in provision of training during the ongoing Covid pandemic and hope that these teaching sessions will help with training in gynaecological pathology.

The sessions are aimed at ST2 and above trainees and junior consultants. Attendees will need to preregister for each session via the BAGP website.

The first teaching session is now open for registration: <https://www.thebagp.org/events/list/>.

Following successful registration, delegates will be emailed log in details for each zoom session.

The teaching sessions will be delivered either as power point presentations, scanned slide seminars or live microscopy sessions. The sessions will be moderated to help with Q & As.

Certificates of attendance will be emailed to all attendees, within a fortnight of the session.

The teaching session schedule over the next few months is as follows:

	Topic	Speaker	Date	Time
1	Seminar on Ovarian Epithelial Tumours	Dr Jason Wong	Wednesday 11th November	3-5 pm
2	Biopsies from the female genital tract	Dr Sudha Desai	Wednesday 9 th December	3-4 pm
